

Comparing the change in air quality during the COVID-19 lockdown between dry and wet seasons in Nepal

Narayan Babu Dhital<sup>1</sup>, Dilli Ram Bhattarai<sup>2</sup>, Ramesh Prasad Sapkota<sup>3</sup>,
Kedar Rijal<sup>3</sup>, Rejina Maskey Byanju<sup>3</sup>, Hsi-Hsien Yang<sup>4*</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Department of Environmental Science, Patan Multiple Campus, Tribhuvan University, Lalitpur, Nepal

<sup>2</sup>Nepal Environmental Research Institute, Kathmandu, Nepal

<sup>3</sup>Central Department of Environmental Science, Tribhuvan University, Kathmandu, Nepal

<sup>4</sup>Department of Environmental Engineering and Management, Chaoyang University of Technology, Taichung City, Taiwan

* Corresponding author. Tel. +886-4-2332-3000 # 7571
E-mail address: hhyang@cyut.edu.tw

Supplementary Material

Fig. S1. Daily change in community mobility at transit stations compared to the pre-pandemic baseline (Google LLC, 2022).

REFERENCES

Google LLC (2022). Google COVID-19 Community Mobility Reports. URL <https://www.google.com/covid19/mobility/> (accessed 26 April 2022).